Activity 5:

1. Appreciation of our surroundings -
The poem lists things around us are red in colour. some are obvious things such as the colour of blood and the fire engine. Others are subtle, such as the colour of sunset and sunburn. This prompts us to take a moment to actually observe and appreciate our surroundings and all the wonderful colours in the world.
2. Emotions and feelings-
The poet associates certain with the colour red such as courage, anger, embarrassment and caution. All these are quite strong emotions and this conveys what a powerful colour red is. It also reminds us of a variety of emotions that we feel in our daily lives which resembles a spectrum of colours.

Activity 6:

1. We must be observant and appreciative of our surroundings.
2. Every human being will feel a variety of emotions.
3. We should value nature as a source of our needs.
